JOINT SERVICES REVIEW

Every year on the Friday before Mom's Week- end, the three R.O.T.C. units at Oregon State University have their Joint Services Review. This year the units were privileged to have U.S. Representative Mike Kopetski as their reviewing officer. Many Moms and other relatives showed up to witness the grand spectacle of all three services marching in their Pass in Review. Congratulations to Mr. McKenna and all of the midshipmen and cadets for an outstanding ceremony.
BULLDOG PREP

Each year the start of the spring term marks the beginning of a new training phase for Marine Corps Officer Candidates. It is a rigorous 11 week program designed to prepare OSU Marine Option students for a six-week training program at Officer Candidate School in Quantico, VA. This 11 week program is called BULLDOG PREP.

Bulldog prep has been in existence since 1945. The purpose is to test the candidates' composure and leadership during challenging situations, in addition to preparing them for BULLDOG. Candidates are evaluated in areas of leadership and physical fitness, and military academics. On Monday, Wednesday, and Friday candidates meet at 0730 for academic training. Physical training starts at 1530 and lasts to about 1730 on these same days.

The mission of Officer Candidate School is to "evaluate and screen officer candidates to ensure that they possess the requisite leadership, moral, and physical qualities for commissioned grade and the determination to successfully complete professional training at The Basic School." Bulldog prep is just the appetizer for Officer Candidate School. So far, OSU is keeping up with it's fine tradition, and possesses one of the top six bulldog prep programs in the nation. Major Michael Sessions and his staff deserve a big BRAVO ZULU.

CLUBS AND TEAMS
CLUBS AND TEAMS

At OSU there are a number of clubs and teams in which midshipmen can participate. They are designed to encourage unit involvement in addition to relieving the everyday tension brought about by school work. The focus is on developing pride, discipline, and responsibility among midshipmen and officer candidates within the unit.

The OSU NROTC Unit includes such teams as: Public Affairs Office, Drill Team, Color Guard, Drum & Bugle Corps, Rifle and Pistol Teams, PFT / Physical Skills Team, Swim Team, Football Team and Basketball Team. The unit's clubs consist of Surface Warfare, Aviation, Semper Fi, Nuclear Power, Swords of Honor, and the Society of American Military Engineers.

These clubs and teams provide a small taste of what to expect in the fleet. They also increase the individual's performance level and build knowledge. In addition to campus activities, the teams compete every year at Northwest Navy. These clubs and teams are a vital part of a midshipman's experience in the unit. They provide the little twists and turns on the path to a commission.

It Takes Time To Develop Strength And Stability. We've Taken The Time.

USAA. 70 Years in the Making.

Growth doesn't happen overnight. It takes a special kind of insight to envision the future and plan for it.

At USAA, our vision of tomorrow grew from one powerful idea: be the best at servicing our members and all else will follow. It's a way of doing business that has kept us a step ahead of the ever-changing economic climate.

And a way that has helped us develop into a leading financial services company with more than 2 million members and associate members worldwide.

Our approach to service is simple. You talk. We listen. Then we mutually decide on the right insurance and financial products to fit your needs. Year after year after year.

Throughout our 70 year tradition of serving military officers and their families, we've constantly looked for new ways to improve our products and services - from insurance and investments to banking and discount buying services.

So if you're looking for a company with a long-standing reputation of stability and strength, look to USAA. We're here to offer you a lifetime of service at your command. Call 1-800-241-USAA.

USAA

Those eligible for USAA membership include anyone who is now or ever has been a commissioned or warrant officer in the U.S. military. Candidates for commission are also eligible to apply. Banking services not available in Pennsylvania.

HARPOON STAFF

The Harpoon yearbook is sixty four pages of pure challenge. Had I known the difficulty and responsibility of being in charge of making such a book, I may never have accepted the job. But by some inevitable force of fate I was placed in charge. It was in the spring of last year, I was on the Photo Crew and I wanted to be promoted to a squad leader position for the coming year. All the positions had been taken, but when one of our fellow midshipmen left for the Air Force Academy, the newly appointed Public Affairs Officer, James Dibble, asked if I would accept the job. Faced with this proposition, I said yes. Anything was better than just being a member of the platoon and this would pave my way for further promotions.

But the Harpoon turned out to be no ordinary job. As my first leadership experience, it presented challenges I had never encountered before. But with my loyal and hard working staff, we attacked the book and every obstacle it sent our way and the finished product now sits in your hands. We conquered our nemesis and we are ready to move on and accept the new challenges that life and the Navy will present to us.

I had never worked on a yearbook before and knew very little about it. So I owe many thanks to many people. I would like to thank MIDN Duax for undertaking the dreaded job of business manager and going out and selling all those ads. Thanks to O.C. Pellerito for showing all of us computer illiterate people like myself how to use the Page Maker program which was so handy in making this book. Thank you to MIDN Albin and MIDN Neal for their hard work on the yearbook layout. Finally, thank you to LT Hillman for helping me through my first leadership experience successfully.

Though I can not speak for my men personally, I feel that we have all learned something from working on this yearbook. I have seen them mature professionally and we all learned how to work as a team. Thanks again guys, you make me proud!
